A Pause . . . And Reflection

Our young people have worked very diligently over the past several months. This weekend, that hard work is paying off. They will be gathering with like-minded young people at the Lads to Leaders convention in Louisville. Even though there will be competition, that is not the central goal of this effort. Their knowledge and training will serve them well in years to come. It is from these young people that the church of the future will draw men and women who will teach the generation that follows them. They will not be with us Sunday morning because of their travel. They will, however, be worshipping with the other attendees and should be back with us by Sunday night. We will be hearing more about the convention and our young people's participation in the coming weeks.

Special thanks is due to our adult volunteers and chaperones. They have sacrificed time and effort to help our kids. We are very grateful for their love, help and encouragement in this important work.

It is good to get back in the swing of things with our Wednesday Night Enrichment Series. We have had some excellent lessons thus far and the latter part of the series promises more of the same. If you are unable to attend, you can see the series archived on our website. Each one should become available fairly soon after the mid-week service. You can also order a DVD, of one or all of them, by filling out an order form in the lobby and turning that form in.

I hope you have a great week. —Lance

Angels Proclaim

At Jesus' birth angels announced, "He is here."

At his death, they proclaimed, "He is not here."

At his ascension they promised, "He is coming back."

Forgetfulness: A Blessing or Curse?

Part of Paul's philosophy of Christian living was to "forget those things that lay behind and to reach forward to what things lay ahead" (Philippians 3:13). There is a value to moving beyond the mistakes of our past rather than reliving them every day. Certainly, it is a blessing to be able to forget the hurtful words that have been spoken against us or the personal attacks that we have endured.

However, forgetting can have its negatives as well. A British senior citizen one day started to drive to downtown London. The traffic was so crowded that he decided to park on a side street and walk the final 10 or so blocks to his destination. Later that day he spent four hours looking for his car in his usual downtown parking lot. He went back many times but never could find his misplaced car. It was seven months later that a man who lived on the side street realized that the car parked in front of his house did not belong to his next door neighbor. He finally was able to contact the forgetful owner and return the car.

We must never forget the commitment we made to the Lord the day we were baptized. We must never forget the command to love God and our fellow man. We must never forget that we wear the name of Christ everywhere we go and in every conversation we have.

It is important to remember where we parked our car or put our keys. It is far more important that we remember that we have died to ourselves and given Jesus the keys to our heart.
